Re: Public Health Officer, Community Health Service, Tamworth

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am a final-year student at the University of Sydney, applying for the Public Health Officer position with the Community Health Service in Tamworth. Hunter New England Local Health District's vision is to build healthier communities and provide world-class care. Its purpose emphasises safe, quality care and responsible use of resources. Two of my main project experiences in HSBH2009 were centred on older Australians who miss out on care because of age or distance. I would bring that focus to accessible health promotion in Tamworth and surrounding communities.

My Design Project demonstrates my ability to work effectively as part of a diverse team, as well as independently. I researched two solutions and drafted Sections 1 and 2, including an assessment of our target population's needs. My teammate developed the slide sequence, and I added animations and narration to our community health video. It received a Distinction, with specific praise for its advice to ask a pharmacist about medication packs. This experience would inform how I conduct community health assessments and collaborate with local stakeholders, combining their community knowledge with my research and communication skills.

My communication and interpersonal skills developed through a simulated telehealth consultation. When the patient's foot slipped out of view, I paused my explanation and guided her camera positioning before continuing. The task received 73% overall. In Tamworth, I would use clear instructions and check understanding to develop and implement health promotion initiatives. I would also engage in health advocacy by supporting phone or face-to-face alternatives for people unable to participate by video. Offering that choice reflects respect for people's circumstances and empowerment through control over how they receive support.

I am proficient in the use of technology for enhancing health, demonstrated through designing two simulated patients and building and testing Ethan in Simu Talk. His responses followed the instructions I had written for practising open questions and explaining confidentiality. My Week 6 AI scribe work also examined how technology can be successfully implemented in new organisations. Lyrebird's note retained five planted details but added an unstated date, showing why adoption requires source checking, staff training and consent procedures. I would apply that approach when helping services monitor and evaluate health outcomes, checking accuracy alongside workload and patient experience.

The district's values of collaboration and openness would guide that work through shared decisions with local partners and clear explanations of technology's limitations. My ePortfolio provides evidence against all four criteria. I can start immediately and can be reached on 0432 564 341 or at bill.athanassiou11@gmail.com. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss my contribution to your team.

Yours sincerely,

Bill Athanassiou
